OMISSIONS IN HIGH HENRY PRINCE'S WILL NOT WILL RUN

Provision for Widow Is Does Not Want to Be Referred to but Sheriff---Kaulukou
None Made. Is Willing.

Because of an ambiguity in the terms of the will of the late David Kawanakoa, or the omission of an important portion of the will in the typewritten copy signed by the late Prince, a contest has been started to have the instrument declared no will and void.

The instrument provides for the distribution of the estate between the children and John F. Colburn, residuary legatee in trust during the life of the widow, while reference is made in the document to a provision that had been made for the wife, but the provision itself is not in the will submitted for probate, nor is there any reference as to what the residuary legatee in trust shall do with the income from the portion of the estate given into his charge, beyond the instruction to care for the estate, collect the income under the provisions of the will and reinvest under the same provisions.

F. E. Thompson appears for the contestant and C. W. Ashford is named as attorney for the Kapiolani Estate. The will, in full, is given herewith.

PRINCE DAVID'S WILL.

In the name of God, amen.
I, David Kawanakoa, of the City of Honolulu, in the Territory of Hawaii, being in good health, and of sound and disposing mind and memory, but having in view the uncertainty of human life, do hereby make, publish and declare this, my last will and testament, hereby expressly revoking and making void any and all wills and testaments by me at any time or times heretofore made and published.

I declare that I have a wife, Abigail W. Kawanakoa by name, and that, by my said wife I have three children, whose names and ages are respectively as follows:

1. Abigail Kapiolani, aged five (5) years or thereabouts;

2. David Kaulakaua, aged 3 1/2 years or thereabouts;

3. Helen Liluokalani, aged 2 1/2 years or thereabouts.

But whereas my said wife and I have this day given in adoption the said Kapiolani to my wife's mother, Mrs. Abigail K. Campbell-Parker, from whom, under the law of this Territory, she will inherit, as would a natural child of her said grandmother and adopting parent, thereby insuring an adequate provision for her from and out of the estate of her said adopting parent, and her generous nurture and education by her said adopting parent, I therefore purposely omit the said Kapiolani from the provisions and benefits of this, my last will and testament.

I do will and direct that my executor hereinafter named, shall, as soon as may be after my decease, pay and discharge all and singular my debts that shall then be outstanding and unpaid, including the expenses of my last illness and funeral.

I give, devise and bequeath all and singular my feather leis, kahilis, ahukus, decorations and orders of distinction to my son Kaulakaua, for his sole and absolute property. But the custody thereof, during his minority, shall be held by my said trustee.

I give, devise and bequeath to John F. Colburn, of said Honolulu, my trust-friend and advisor, all and singular my rest, residue and remainder of my estate, of whatsoever kind and character, and wheresoever situated.

To have and to hold unto him, and

WATER MAY BE SHUT OFF

If Rain Does Not Come the Public Will Be Dis-commoded.

In a couple of days, if there is not even a very slight rainfall, the water supply will be cut off to consumers, except at certain stated intervals each day. Only for a very tiny precipitation from the Nuanuu clouds the reservoirs would have been put on the tabu list and the water supply for consumers would have been of the smallest amount possible.

Superintendent of Public Works Campbell is watching the progress of the reservoir supply toward the bottom of each conservator, with anxiety, anxiety because of the necessary demands that he will have to make upon the patience of the consumers. The superintendent is not to blame because there is a lack of water, and if rain will not descend upon the mountain tops and hillsides of Nuanuu there will be no water for the payers of water rates.

"If it wasn't for muddying up what little water is left, so that there would be no water at all to turn into the mains, I would have a big cleaning up of the reservoirs," said the Superintendent yesterday. "But with no water supply, even the cleaning will have to be dispensed with."

"The little fall of rain last night gave enough additional water to keep the reservoirs going for two days more, at the rate water is permitted to go into the mains at present."

"With a good supply of water the monitor we have for sluicing for the new dam would do more work, in the ratio, than is being done at the Panama canal."

"I must say this that the people of this city, in general, are law-abiding when it comes to observing the ordinances, and especially concerning water. People who take the utmost pride in the upkeep of their premises are observing the restrictions so particularly that their places show the need of sufficient water to keep everything green."

REVENGING THE TATSU INCIDENT

Boycott Having Big Effect on Foreign Business Houses in China.

Business houses in all the Chinese coast cities are in the throes of a great financial depression just now, the result of the Chinese boycott on Japanese products and the two late wars which burdened Japan and China with debt. This statement was made yesterday aboard the S. S. Manchuria by M. E. Getz of Getz Bros., wholesale exporting grocers. Mr. Getz has spent ten months in China looking after the interests of their branch store in Shanghai.

Mr. Getz states that since the boycott began on Japanese goods, following the Tatsu Maru incident, it has caused the downfall of many Japanese business houses and great financial losses, and that their representatives in the Chinese cities have been forced to the wall. Even the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, a Japanese corporation and one of the largest steamship companies in the world, has sustained a loss, according to Mr. Getz' figures, of 4,000,000 yen in the past year, the bulk of it being caused in recent months by the boycott.

Owing to the bad financial and trade outlook Mr. Getz went to the Orient to look closely after the affairs of his company. It was found that many companies had overstocked with goods and these were put off their hands even at a loss. Today companies are not carrying great stocks of goods, preferring to do an office business only, importing goods on order. Under the comprador system the importers are covered for their margins, so that there is less likelihood of the importing companies scoring a loss through failure of customers to make their paper good.

Mr. Getz says, also, that the exchange is lower today than for some time past, the Mexican dollar being the basis of trade transactions.

In confirmation of Mr. Getz' statements concerning the status of business (Continued on page 8.)

LAUKEA INDISCREET BUT NOT CULPABLE

The grand jury finds that Laukea has been indiscreet but not criminal in the matter of the Isoi bribery attempt. The same jury finds that Isoi had a criminal intent and violated the law in his offer to pay for police protection, but on account of the way the affair was handled by the Sheriff it is impossible to indict the Japanese for his criminal act.

This report was presented by the grand jury to Judge De Bolt yesterday afternoon, along with a report of indictments found. These are: Miyaka Gaichi, assault with a deadly weapon; David Keyes, embezzlement; Mamura, assault with a deadly weapon; Alexandria M. Pak Chee, adultery; K. Anno, selling liquor without a license, and Wong Gock, adultery.

The official report concerning the investigation into the Sheriff's dealings with Isoi was:

"Your grand jurors have made a careful and complete investigation into the Laukea-Isoi matter, and our conclusion in the premises is that no criminal charge can be made against Sheriff Laukea, as the evidence does not warrant it. As to Isoi, it is our belief that he intended to and did violate the law by attempting bribery, but in view of the indiscreet conduct of Sheriff Laukea, both in this attempted bribery and with regard to his prior transaction—the borrowing of $100—an indictment could not be secured against Isoi."

This concludes the work of the present grand jury, which will probably be excused from further attendance this week.

GOVERNOR STUDYING ELECTION PRECINCTS

"Taking a walk around the Islands" is the way Governor Frear describes the work he is doing in studying the various precinct boundary problems submitted to him from the politicians. On Saturday afternoon the Governor had the largest obtainable maps of the Islands brought into his office, and with these spread out on the floor he studied the situation. Sometimes he had to get down on his hands and knees to better figure out the trails and routes the voters would have to take, and on hands and knees he crawled over all the Puna and Kona and the other districts of the archipelago, going farther in his work than some of the voters will have to go to find their precinct polls.

The changes to be made are those mentioned several weeks ago in the Advertiser, the swinging around of the line between the first and second of the fourth, the establishment of additional polling places in the Koolau, and some changes on Maui.

This work has all to be completed preparatory to issuing the election proclamation, while in the outer offices of the Governor's wing at the Capitol the other preparatory work is well under way and everything will be in shape for the issuing of the proclamation next month.

To the People of Hawaii

By Geo. P. Castle.

A Message to the Men and Women of Wealth of the Territory of Hawaii, with a word thrown in for the People of Smaller Means.

The year 1908, for this Territory, is one of unusual prosperity, therefore a good one in which to make a proposition that may perhaps be a little startling, and I must confess has required considerable bolstering of courage to bring me to the point of publishing over my name.

There are institutions and objects, educational and charitable, in Honolulu and all over the Islands, that can only be kept up by voluntary subscriptions, and this assistance frequently comes only through the personal persuasions of those who are furthering such work; this is not always pleasant, nor in results as effective as the objects merit.

For illustration, I will name a few of such objects: Oahu College, the leading educational institution of the Islands, has a constant struggle to keep going; it needs a large endowment, and has a debt now of over $90,000.

Mid-Pacific Institute, being an amalgamation of Kawaihae Seminary and Mills Institute, together with the Japanese and Korean educational work, is through the generosity of certain public-spirited persons, erecting its new buildings in Manoa Valley. There is much more needed for construction and grounds. Then will come the never-ending struggle for funds to carry on the work, which an endowment would greatly relieve.

Hawaii has an excellent and deserving educational and industrial institution in the Hilo Boarding School; this needs assistance and endowment. There are also other such institutions scattered through the Islands that are dependent upon private assistance, all needy and deserving.

The Leahi Home and Queen's Hospital should have assistance, and the Children's Hospital, about to be started, cannot be carried on with only the interest on endowment, already raised, of $50,000; at 6 per cent, this would be $3000 per year. It costs the Queen's Hospital about $48,000 per year for running expenses, and if the Children's Hospital should need one-fourth as much there would be $12,000 to raise every year, which would require an endowment of $200,000 to produce the $12,000.

There are other hospitals besides the above; also the Associated Charities and benevolent societies requiring constant assistance.

A large benevolent work is being carried on all over the Islands under the various religious organizations. These organizations support ministers, teachers and workers who are devoting their time and energies for the betterment of their fellow men, through religious instruction, education, care of the sick, social settlement work, orphan asylums and rescue homes. If any people deserve a comfortable living for themselves and their families, these people do, but as a rule they are underpaid and have a struggle to get along.

The Salvation Army is practical and self-sacrificing in its work; housing and feeding outcasts in their coffee house. Carrying on their Rescue Home, where a reformatory work is done, and like the Susan Wesley Home and other similar institutions, giving refuge to parentless and homeless children. The need of this kind of an institution is often severe and the cases pathetic.

In addition to all of the above there are the Free Kindergarten and Children's Aid Association, the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A., the Honolulu Library, Kiloana Art League and many others. The foregoing exhibit is only for the purpose of refreshing the memory as to existing needs.

Now, to come down to the meat of the cocconut, I will first address the men of means who are having unusually large incomes this year, and will ask your kind attention to the following questions, which each might ask himself: How much can I spare this year for endowment and assistance to some one or more of the above-mentioned institutions? Cannot I give 50 per cent. of my income? If I do give so much, is it really going to hurt me? After paying my usual expenses, can I not for this year forego wholly, or in part, the adding to my pile? Is it really necessary for my family that I lay up so much for their future use? Can I not now put aside self, warm up my heart and for this year give an unusual amount for the relief and gladness of others; perhaps endow some institution so that people can truly say blessed be the man or woman who did this?

Several years ago I was in the presence of two men of large means. A was a generous man and had learned through habit to be a giver, and knew the pleasure and blessing that comes to the giver as well as the receiver. B was hard, close and saving; had cultivated the opposite habit of not giving; would never give to charities or any thing else, and if such a proposition were mentioned you could immediately feel the chill thrown out. A said to B, "Why, you do not know the pleasure of giving." B answered, "No, and I do not want to, either." The recognized difference in that community between the two men was that one was lovable and loved because he conferred blessings on others, and was himself blessed.

LOOKING FOR TARIFF REVISION POINTERS

Governor Frear had an informal discussion of the tariff yesterday morning with a delegation at his office, those present being Delegate Kuhio, W. O. Smith of the Planters' Association, George W. Smith of the Merchants' Association, James F. Morgan of the Chamber of Commerce, and George B. McClellan. The conference was in regard to the communication recently received by the Governor, and by him turned over to the commercial bodies of the city, which came from the State Board of Trade of California. It asked Hawaii to cooperate with the Western Coast States in preparing suggestions on tariff revision.

At yesterday's conference it was decided that a meeting of the representatives of the commercial and manufacturing interests should be called in the near future to discuss the tariff question.
